The Division of Student Affairs and Campus Diversity, the School of Art and Design, and Arts Alive SDSU are hosting a student mural competition. One of the stated goals of the new SDSU Strategic Plan is to “foster and sustain an environment where all students, faculty, staff, and alumni feel welcomed, supported, and valued by the university.” To realize this goal, we are inviting teams of students from different academic units and centers to work together to create murals reflecting our diverse community.

We are currently accepting applications from groups of two or more students and/or alumni to propose mural projects that address social justice issues. Five selected teams will each receive a $1,000 award (including an artist stipend and a materials allowance) to create and install a mural on one of the SDSU campuses by June 15, 2021. Students and alumni from the Mesa Campus and the Imperial Valley Campus are encouraged to apply, and all teams will have access to mentors from the School of Art and Design.

Questions may be directed to Eric Smigel, Chair of Arts Alive SDSU, at esmigel@sdsu.edu

APPLICATION DEADLINE: FEB 19, 2021

Proposals will be evaluated by the following criteria:

- clarity & impact of design
- relevance to contemporary social issues
- practicality of implementation
- interdisciplinary diversity of team
